- Promoting your products and services at a table-top exhibit at the CSIA Annual Executive Conference in April
- Engage in business-level conversations with Integrators and Partners on the CSIA online private community
- Networking with leading control system integrators at the conference and online. This networking enables you to identify and align with the top control system integrators globally, particularly those that are CSIA Certified.
- Utilizing the Best Practices manual and CSIA Certification criteria to develop your control system integrator Service Provider program. CSIA Certification assures you that an integrator has the necessary business practices and this compliments your technical qualifications.
- Submitting entries to an Automation Showcase library where integrator members go to discover new opportunities
- Participation on CSIA committees supports the association and builds relationships
- Your membership and participation helps to advance the CSI industry which increases the probability that your products will go to market properly
